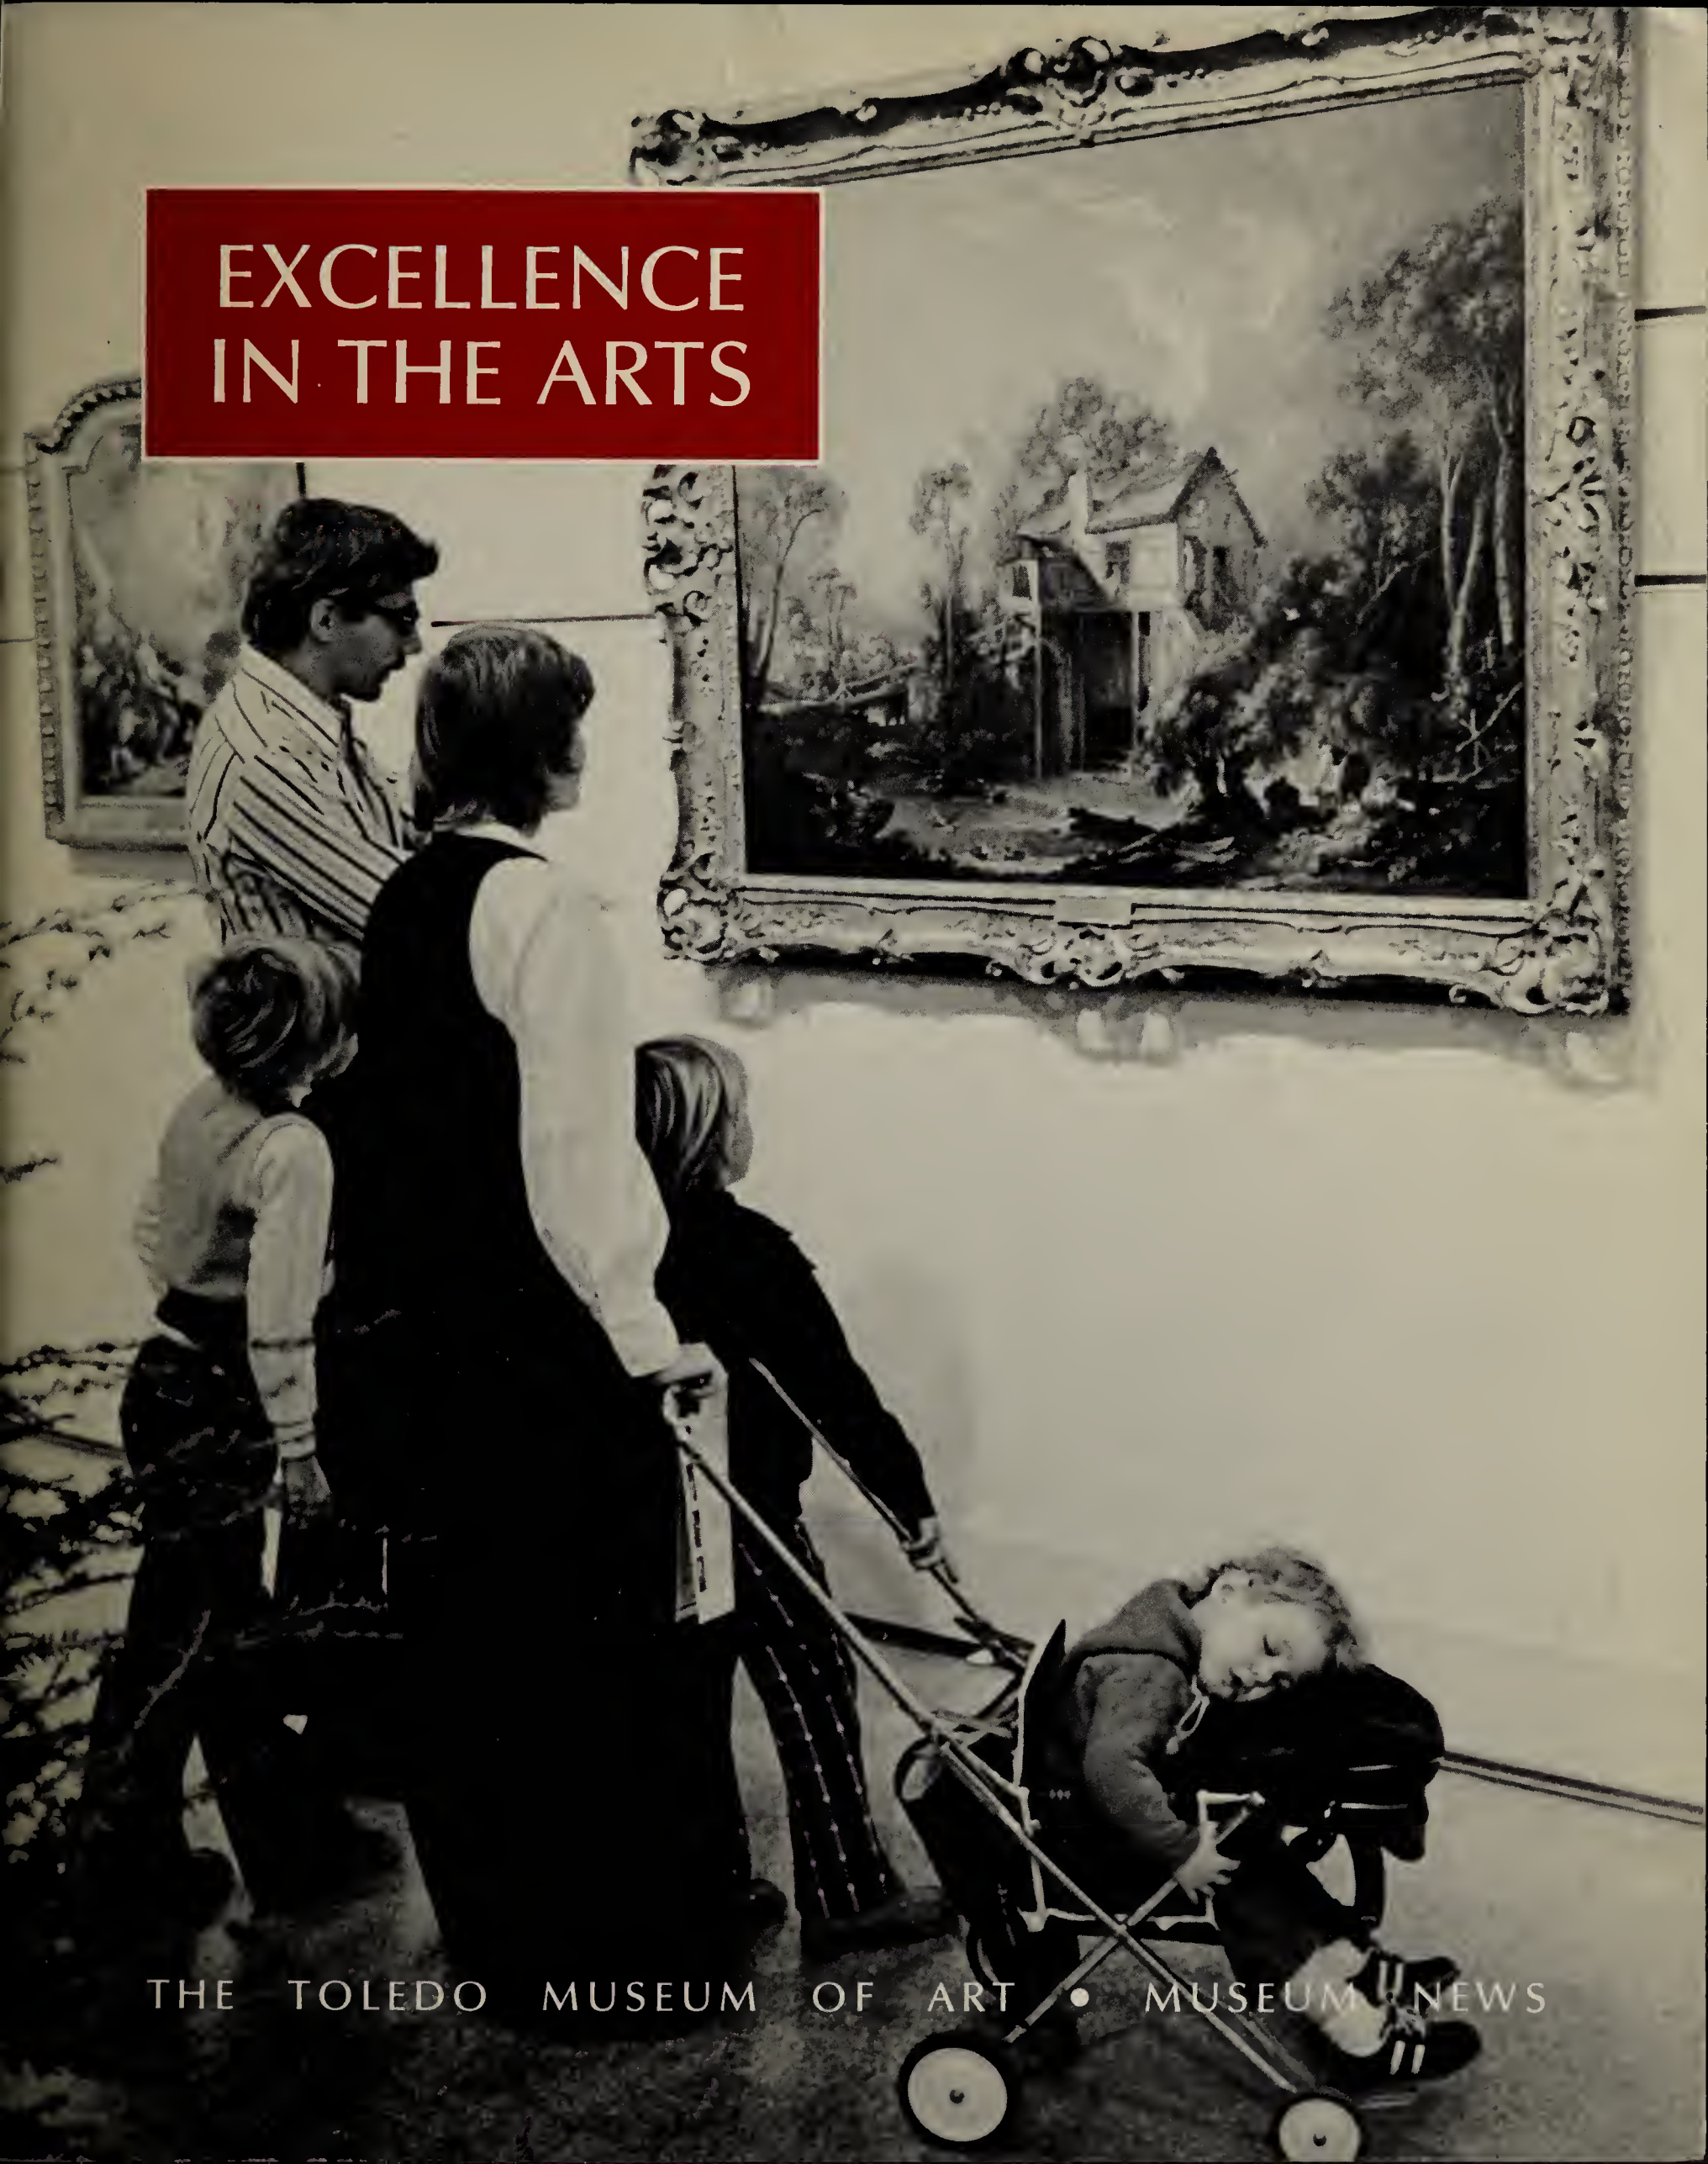
EXCELLENCE IN THE ARTS



EXCELLENCE IN THE ARTS: Our History and Our Future

Throughout the years of association with Toledo's Museum, and through visits to many others, I have become increasingly aware of the singular qualities of The Toledo Museum of Art. There has always been a remarkable balance between your Museum's renowned collections, its education programs, and strong continuing community support. Much of this "chemistry" depends upon the people associated with your Museum.

In our 75th anniversary year, it is appropriate to reflect on the good judgment and generosity of many who have made the Museum the most vital cultural resource in our region and one of the ten finest in our country. Without the vision and support of Edward Drummond and Florence Scott Libbey, the Museum would never have been founded, much less have had such a sound financial history. Other great donors of the past and present, Arthur J. Secor, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Levis, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Boeschenstein, Abe Plough; our major Toledo companies, Owens-Illinois, Libbey-Owens-Ford, and Owens-Corning Fiberglas; and countless other individual and corporate contributors have enabled the Museum to continue to provide broad educational services for our region, and continuing free admissions to everyone. The 7,800 members of the Museum and the volunteer support provide the broad base upon which our programs are able to grow.

The Museum staff, all those who worked with directors George Stevens, Blake-More Godwin and Otto Wittmann, have added significantly to the impact of our Museum over the years. It is fortunate that so many of the staff have worked at the Museum for most of their professional careers, contributing to the vitality and continuity of the Museum and our community.

Marvin Kobacker, Museum President.

The Museum has had only three directors in its 75-year history. Each has provided strong and energetic leadership. Our community and our nation have looked to these men to set the standards in museums for their times and beyond. Otto Wittmann, your Museum's current director, has not only distinguished himself as a great cultural leader in our community, but is recognized nationally as a founding member of the National Council on the Arts and of the Ohio Arts Council. He is the only American museum director who is an Officer in France's Legion d'Honneur and holds several other high decorations from France, Italy and The Netherlands.

Our future depends on our past; fortunately, our past has provided a foundation and example which cannot fail to inspire us all. But the responsibility for the future belongs to our generation. Our energy and our financial support are needed now to insure that generations to come will know joy and excellence in the arts.

The Age of Louis XV: French Painting 1710-1774 attracted more than 75,000 visitors from our region and across the nation.

THE MUSEUM'S 75TH ANNIVERSARY YEAR

On April 18, 1976 your Museum celebrated its 75th Anniversary. More than 4,100 children and their families came to the Museum's joyous birthday party. President Ford, many legislators and foreign dignitaries sent their congratulations. The seventy-five years have not aged the Museum; rather, the several generations of children who have begun their appreciation of the arts here have refreshed and renewed the building, the staff, and the community. The ever-growing support for the Museum's fine educational services has continued to assure the quality of programs for which it has always been known.

In founding the Museum in 1901, Edward Drummond Libbey and the other community leaders had very clearly in mind the educational mission of the Museum. In his first annual report to the Museum's membership in 1902, Mr. Libbey urged "that hereafter we allow teachers and pupils free admission to all exhibitions . . . for it is my opinion that the object of our institution, the education in and cultivation of art, can find no better field than in our public schools." A year later, he recommended that the Museum "be open to the public free every day in the year." This policy is ironically becoming as unique today in American museums as it was over 70 years ago because Mr. Libbey's support for the Museum has been followed by other forward-looking Toledo civic leaders throughout its history.

This year the Museum has more than 7,800 members; nearly 320 families, foundations and corporations are members of the President's Council. Their commitment to the Museum today will help ensure the growth and wider availability of the Museum's noteworthy programs as it looks to its hundredth anniversary in 2001.

Nearly 400,000 people visited the many exhibitions, classes, tours and special programs planned for the Museum's anniversary year. Or they simply came alone or with their families to enjoy quietly the Museum's world-renowned art collection. Even during this year of celebration, we worked to improve the quality of the individual visitor's experience through careful evaluation, revision and coordination of all phases of the Museum's programs.

An impressive schedule of temporary exhibitions during this special year began in October with The Age of Louis XV: French Painting 1710-1774. This internationally accalimed exhibition of more than 120 paintings was organized by your Museum with the assistance of Pierre Rosenberg, Curator of Paintings of The Louvre, and was also shown at the Art Institute of Chicago and the National Gallery of Canada. The exhibition, which was accompanied by a handsome and scholarly catalogue, presented the first re-evaluation of 18th century French painting in almost a century. Nearly 75,000 visitors from our region and abroad saw The Age of Louis XV in Toledo. The National Endowment for the Arts, the Ohio Arts Council, The Plough Foundation of Memphis and the Bequest of William E. Levis provided support for the exhibition.

A holiday season treat for children, The Original Drawings of Dr. Seuss, presented with support of the Ohio Arts Council, showed the delightful sketches and illustrations of this famous book creator. American Art Since 1945, an exhibition of important paintings and sculpture by major American artists from the collection of the Museum of Modern Art, demonstrated the power and international influence of post-war American art.

A delightful and intimate show in March from the Century Association in New York featured 38 small paintings and drawings given to the poet William Cullen Bryant in 1864, including the work of major American artists of his time, including Cropsey, Church, and Bierstadt. On view in April was Primitive Art Masterworks, a selection of works of art from the native cultures of Africa, Oceania and the Americas in the collection of the Museum of Primitive Art in New York.

An exhibition of major works of Spanish art from your Museum's collection was assembled in May in honor of the visit of representatives of Toledo, Spain. The 58th Annual Toledo Area Artists exhibition celebrated the long and unique relationship between the Museum and the artists in our region. This exhibition was co-sponsored with the Toledo Federation of Art Societies.

Heritage and Horizon: American Painting 1776-1976, organized by your Museum as its major Bicentennial exhibition, appropriately opened here on July 4. Selected from the collections of Toledo's Museum, The Detroit Institute of Arts, Albright-Knox Art Gallery and The Cleveland Museum of Art, the exhibition was shown at each of the participating museums with several cooperatively created educational components and a handsome catalogue.

Work on the final exhibition of the Museum's anniversary schedule, Treasures for Toledo, is nearing completion. This exhibition will be the first public viewing of many important acquisitions not previously announced, as well as a review of the major works of art acquired during the last decade. The exhibition will be accompanied by a special issue of the Museum News illustrating many key objects.

Coinciding with the Treasures for Toledo exhibition will be the appearance of three major publications on which considerable staff time has been spent over the past few years. European Paintings, a fully illustrated and annotated 400-page catalogue of the Museum's collection of these works of art will be published with support from the National Endowment for the Arts and The Ford Foundation. This is the Museum's first catalogue of European paintings since 1939, and will make available all known scholarly information on approximately 450 paintings. A new, colorful and beautifully designed Guide to the Collections, printed with the partial support of the Ohio Arts Council, will be a popularly priced survey of the Museum, illustrating selections of all media from the Museum's fine collections. The Museum's outstanding Greek vase collection will be featured in our own volume of the scholarly series, Corpus Vasorum Antiquorum, which fully illustrates and documents each vase. This publication has also received the support of the National Endowment for the Arts, and the assistance of the Semple Classics Fund of the University of Cincinnati (the institution of Dr. Cedric Boulter, co-author with our Museum's Curator of Ancient Arts, Kurt T. Luckner).

The Museum plays an important role in the lives of many senior citizens.

The John D. Biggers Glass Study Room, a major new educational facility which makes available for the first time approximately 3,000 examples of glass from the Museum's collection with all information about them, was recently completed. This room, designed for scholarly and public use, honors the late Mr. Biggers, a former President of the Museum and former Chairman of the Board of the Libbey-Owens-Ford Company. The room was made possible by matching funds from Libbey-Owens-Ford and the National Endowment for the Arts. The Glass Study Room is part of the Museum's new Research Center which incorporates the Art Reference Library and the Grace J. Hitchcock Print Study Room in a complex facilitating the study of art at all levels.

The Museum's relationship to the University of Toledo continued to grow and to diversify this year to include more students in more areas related to the broad aims of the University. Thanks to the encouragement of the University's President, Dr. Glen Driscoll, and the support of a new Museum-University committee, the Museum's curriculum has expanded in all areas. Enrollment for credit and continuing education in fine arts, art history and art education was higher than in any previous period in the Museum's history. For example, over 40 students are enrolled in the Master's degree program in art education, unique in American museums. Bowling Green State University also participated in several seminars which used the Museum's collections as a focus for interdisciplinary studies.

The Educational Fellowship program, funded by the Nettie Poe Ketchum Fund and the National Endowment for the Arts, completed its 5th year preparing college graduates for careers in museum education. Twenty-eight persons have benefited from this unique educational opportunity. In cooperation with the University of Michigan, a graduate-level curatorial training program continued to offer introduction seminars and an internship for a student, this year in the print department.

Nearly 140,000 children visited the Museum for free guided tours, special classes, films and other events. Studio and art history classes, film series, concerts and lectures attracted a proportionately high attendance of adults. The music program, including the Peristyle and Great Gallery series and free Sunday concerts, continues to present the highest quality international talent available. A recently formed volunteer organization has helped greatly to promote the Museum's music program.

During this anniversary year, special demands were made on the Museum's fine staff and volunteers. Not surprisingly, by working together the goals of the year were successfully accomplished. We are also especially grateful for the continuing support and encouragement of the Museum's Trustees.

To close on a personal note, your Director completed this year 30 years of service to this Museum. The opportunity to guide the considerable growth of the art collections which have almost tripled in these years, and to develop and expand the education programs has been a joyous adventure. The resulting increase in attendance and broad community support has been gratifying. The Museum will continue to grow and prosper as it continues to serve our community in new and creative ways in the future.

Museum volunteers and staff work together to benefit the community.

VOLUNTEERING AT YOUR MUSEUM

Personal satisfaction and gratitude from the Museum's staff and community are but two reasons for helping your Museum serve the public.

The Endowment Development Committee is a vital group of Trustees and civic leaders who constantly seek new members of the President's Council and donors to the Endowment Fund. Under the leadership of co-chairmen, William Price and John Anderson, this committee has obtained almost 58 new major donors in the past year, and is now encouraging current donors to increase their contributions and to consider bequests to the Museum.

The Art Museum Aides are the force behind the annual Membership Drive obtaining over 1,200 new Museum members this year. These volunteers work year-round to inspire more broad support of the Museum's programs. The Aides also operate Collectors Corner, the art rental and sales gallery of the Museum, and take care of the plants throughout the Museum.

Friends of the Museum are successful workers who continually sell new memberships in the Museum. This group of volunteers also assist the Aides as hostesses at openings of major exhibitions.

Nearly 31,000 children and 4,200 adults have attended lectures on art and music given by the Art Museum Docents. Docents spend many hours in training to bring the Museum's collections alive and related to school curriculum from the first grade through high school. Docents also prepare special tours for adult special interest groups.

The Museum is grateful for the time and effort these volunteers give so generously and is pleased to list their names on these pages.

Endowment contributions insure future growth of the Museum's programs.

ENDOWMENT DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE

The Endowment Development Committee, whose main purpose is to increase major contributions to the Museum, is composed of Museum Trustees and other community leaders. This committee was successful in obtaining more than 50 new contributors to the Endowment Fund in 1976.

Well-trained volunteer Museum docents guided thousands of adults and children through the galleries this year.

ART MUSEUM DOCENTS

The Art Museum Docents provide opportunities for groups to understand and enjoy art in the permanent collection and temporary exhibitions at The Toledo Museum of Art. Gallery experiences offered to over 40,000 Museum visitors have ranged from art historical lectures for adults to creative children's tours focusing on development of aesthetic sensitivity.

This year, the Aides also helped make the Museum's Birthday Party a success.

ART MUSEUM AIDES

The Museum's Membership Drive is the chief activity of the Art Museum Aides. The Aides also serve as hostesses at special exhibition events and operate Collectors Corner, the art sales and rental gallery spotlighting area talent, and care for plants in the galleries.

Museum memberships help support the free art and music education programs which benefit so many.

ALL OF OUR GALLERIES REMAIN OPEN — THANKS TO YOUR MEMBERSHIP!

The growing support of Museum membership helps provide funds needed to serve the Toledo community. Your Museum has always been supported by family memberships and private funds. Varied programs in art and music education as well as concerts, exhibitions and other activities attest to the pride with which over 7,800 members of this community regard their Museum.

The Museum, the dream of Edward Drummond Libbey and other civic-minded community leaders, is now our responsibility. The free Saturday art and music classes attended by nearly 2,000 young people this past year, made possible by membership contributions, continues to be one of America's finest cultural programs. This wonderful program, however, is not self perpetuating. The Museum needs ever-increasing funds to meet the demands of this outstanding endeavor.
